1. It's a great sep - a - ra - tion my friends they have caused me, by bear - ing their spite that my fa - vor was won. It's a great sep - a - ra - tion, like - wise a vex - a - tion, and they shall be sor - ry for what they have done. Eat, drink, and be jo - lly, and care not for fol - ly, and drown a - way sor - row in a bot - tle of wine. Pass it to the boys — in full, flow - ing bum - pers, and play on the fid - dle to pass a - way time!

2. Adieu to Bon County, I'm bound for to leave you, / and seek my heart's fortune in some foreign land, where bottles and glasses is my greatest comfort / and when we do meet we'll jine heart and hand.
Eat, drink, and be jolly...
3. Farewell to my friends and my good old neighbors, / likewise to the girl I'll never see more. This world it is wide, and I'll spend it in pleasures, / I don't care for no one that don't care for me.
Eat, drink, and be jolly...
4. My fortune is small, so freely I own it, / what little I have it is all of my own. I might have lived longer to enjoy it with pleasure, / if my poor friends had a' let me alone.
Eat, drink, and be jolly...
5. I have money a plenty to bear my expenses, / and when it's all gone I'll chop wood and get more. When death it comes on me I'll freely go with it, / pay up my last dues and go with it home.
Eat, drink, and be jolly...
